BANQUET AT KENNEDY'S CAFE

OGDEN NEWSBOYS CELEBRATE THEIR ANNIVERSARY.

Regular Business Meeting of the Organization Followed by "Big Spread" and Theater Party.

"Gee, that was a fine dinner we had at the Kennedy Cafe. Us kids filled up plenty and we felt 'bully' after the feed. Now for the Electric for us; it will cost us only a nickel apiece, and we've got the money to pay it. The treasurer foots the bills, see."

That was the expression of Leland Williams, of the Ogden Newsboys Order, No. 1, last night, just after a banquet of the organization at the Kennedy Cafe last night. The banquet was the occasion for the celebration of the first anniversary of the Newsboys' local organization, and it was a happy affair for the lads. They joyfully enjoyed the function, both at the banquet table and at the theater. There were seventy members of the order, and all were present at the banquet, the theater and the meeting of the organization at the Trades and Labor Assembly last evening.

A sort of preliminary to the night's enjoyment the boys met in regular session at the Labor Hall to attend the routine business of the order, which was cut short in anticipation of the banquet and theater party before them. Immediately after the meeting the seventeen distributors of the city repaired to the banquet hall and happily partook of a "big spread," after which they repaired to the theater, where they took much pleasure in witnessing the performance given there.

The officers of the organization are Leland Williams, president; Harold Masterson, vice-president; Carrol Morrison, secretary; Bert Critch, treasurer. Those who attended the meeting, the banquet and the theater were: Leland Williams, Harold Masterson, Carrol Morrison, Bert Critch, Hugh Kessler, Rolin Sellick, Roland Tullison, James Baker, Harvey Holman, Lawrence Haight, George Oviatt, John Smith, Leo Dosey, Errol Collins.

The boys are all perfect little gentlemen and win the admiration and respect of all with whom they come in contact. Manager Kennedy, of the Kennedy Cafe, stated to the Examiner reporter, after the banquet last evening, that the newsboys of Ogden are the finest lot of boys he has ever met. "They are perfect little gentlemen in every respect," he said, "and at the banquet they were among the best behaved crowd I have seen on our pleasure to serve in a long time."

Corbett Was Best of All the Heavyweights

(By Ed W. Smith.)

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Choyinski, who was to box Marvin Hart in Lexington, Ky., the other night when the owners of the opera house called off the Hart-Schreck bout, says that he would have taken part only in a short exhibition and that at the present time he has no serious intention of re-entering the ring.

Joe is a partner in one of the most prosperous of the local physical culture schools and is getting along nicely. He can well afford to sit back and watch the battle from afar.

"Corbett, in his day, was about the ideal boxer," Joe said in the course of a lengthy discussion of the situation.

"Yes, running my eye back over the entire list of the last twenty-five years I can recall none better fitted to carry off the title, at least of champion boxer."

"But Jim could fight, too, let me tell you. Remember that I caught him when he was young and fresh and full of ambition, and I can truthfully say that Jim always had the fighting spirit, whether it was inborn or not. He was pugnacious enough at all times in the ring, although not at all endowed with natural physical strength or ruggedness. Considering this, Jim did wonderfully well. It was a case largely of a bright, vigorous mind being able to overcome the little absence of the physical giants might have had but who were not blessed with such an active mind."

NEW YORK SPORTS STILL THINK BURNS WAS TO WIN

New York, Jan. 8.—Did Jack Johnson double-cross Tommy Burns in the fight at Sydney? Sporting men in various cities would like to have this point cleared up, for they have heard a rumor to the effect that Johnson, after agreeing to fight Burns in Australia, fought on the level. It will be remembered that ten days before the fight a letter from Johnson to a western man was made public in which the negro declared that he intended to "beat Burns" no matter what arrangements had been made between Burns and Fitzpatrick. Johnson also wrote that he cared more for the championship title than money and that Burns did not have enough coin to make him throw the fight.

It also will be recalled that for weeks before the fight Johnson entered the general belief was that the will was queer and for that reason there was little or no betting on the result in this country.

According to the rumor that is in circulation just now, Burns thought he had Johnson fixed; that is, to say, he got a promise from the negro to lay down, and in that way, making the result a sure thing, it was arranged to let Johnson have the privilege of betting $10,000 on Burns. Men who know Burns' methods say that from the time he double-crossed Fitzpatrick, Jack O'Brien in Los Angeles, he proceeded to make all his fights sure things.

The reason Burns avoided Johnson so long, rumor says, was to force the negro to accept the French Canadian's terms, but the only French Canadian that Johnson could lick Burns on the level, was ready to enter into any kind of a "frame-up" emanating from Burns so long as Johnson could get a chance at the white man in the ring.

"An excellent reason for believing," said a veteran referee and matchmaker, who is a friend of Fitzpatrick, "that Burns was fooled at his own game."

FEARS EVERS WILL KEEP HIS WORD

Cub Tinker Says There Is Little Hope of Trojan Playing This Year.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Joe Tinker is worried. The Cubs' dashy shortstop is half sick on account of Johnny Evers' determination to lay off during the next baseball season. For seven years Tinker and Evers have worked together around second base and perhaps no team has two infielders who perform so smoothly. Tinker greets the prospects of breaking in another second sacker. The worst of it is that Joe knows Evers means what he says about quitting for a season.

Tinker has written the second sacker at Troy to reconsider his resolution about taking a year's vacation, but he did it more as a matter of courtesy than in the hope of changing Evers' mind.

"There is nothing I could say that would make Johnny change his mind," said Tinker last night, after finishing a letter to his side partner. "He is dead set on having a summer to himself, and he is that kind of a fellow who will go through with what he says. I told him that he ought to keep playing until he began to slip back. Then it would be time to quit, and nobody would care. But when a player is in the form that Evers is now it is tough to see him drop out, even if only for a short time."

"Evers and I have worked together for so long that we know each other's style thoroughly, and naturally I hate to think of the combination being broken. Johnny may change his mind, but if he does, it will be the first time."

Tinker got his souvenir from the national baseball commission, and the other Cubs, scattered all over the country, positively received theirs at the same time. According to the shorthand, the memories for triumphing the Tigers are horrible shames. Tinker is ashamed to show his to his friends and says he wouldn't wear it to a dog fight. They were made in Cincinnati.

The souvenir is a gold piece about the size of a nickel and is to be worn in the lapel. "World's Champions, 1908," inscribed on it, and in the center a small diamond. According to Tinker, the get-up of the moment is extremely cheap. He has a nice, cozy place in the top dresser drawer, next to the handkerchief box and it will rest there in peace.

"I knew we would draw another lemon when the souvenirs were handed out," said Tinker, "and I wanted the boys to chip in and buy something on their own hook. Then we could get a little remembrance worth keeping. The rest of the boys were willing, but we disbanded in such a hurry that nobody took it upon himself to arrange for the souvenirs. I never saw such phonies as these last trophies are."

Colds contracted at this season of the year are quickly relieved with Bees Laxative Cough Syrup. Its laxative quality rids the system of the cold. Pleasant to take. Best for children for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough. Sold at Geo. F. Cave's and Depot Drug Stores.

STANDARD ELECTION HELD

PAPER LEASED FOR A PERIOD OF TEN YEARS.

Change Makes William Glasemann Responsible For and in Control of All Departments.

Yesterday afternoon the stockholders of the Standard Publishing Company met in annual meeting and elected the following officers and directors: William Glasemann, president; Evelyn Glasemann, vice-president; D. T. Tracy, secretary; Frank Francis, treasurer; F. W. Chambers, director.

All the stock was represented. It was unanimously voted that the company lease the Standard and Examiner for a term of ten years to Wm. Glasemann.

On and after February 1, 1909, Mr. Glasemann will be the exclusive lessee of the Standard and Examiner for ten years. He will have charge of the entire business and assume all responsibility. The Standard Publishing Company has voted that Mr. Glasemann, D. T. Tracy, the secretary, shall collect all the claims due the company and shall place all accounts past due in the hands of attorneys for collection.

The Standard Publishing Company owes some large bills and it must insist on payments of accounts due.

There will be no change in the policy of the paper. All the contracts of the Standard Publishing Company have been assigned to Mr. Glasemann, and he will continue them until date of expiration.

When Mr. Glasemann leaves the post-office on the first of the month, he will do so for the purpose of devoting all his time to the newspaper business.

CHAIRMAN BEARD IN OGDEN

EN ROUTE TO THE EAST FROM SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Expresses View of Broad Usefulness of Annual Sessions of National Irrigation Congress.

As W. A. Beard, chairman of the executive committee of the Fifteenth National Irrigation congress, held at Albuquerque, N. M., passed through Ogden on his way east from Sacramento, California. He had a few moments to spare in Ogden, during which time he expressed himself as follows:

"The congress held at Albuquerque in October last took steps looking to a very broad usefulness, the attainment of which calls for both an earnest endeavor on the part of those of us who were entrusted with the duty of responsibility, and the cordial support of all who are interested in the progress and development of this country, particularly those interested in the development and progress of the great West. A board of government was created and directed to formulate plans for a continuous activity on behalf of the objects and purposes for which the annual sessions are held. The members of this board are as follows: Joseph Dixon of Montana, W. A. Reeder of Kansas, and the governor of Texas (president of the congress), B. A. Fowler of Arizona (secretary), Dr. W. J. McGee of Washington, D. C., Fred J. Kiesel of Utah, W. A. Beard of California.

It is expected that under the leadership of the board the irrigation congress will develop a practical and persistent effort, directed along such channels as seem to us best calculated to make it both fully representative of the congress spirit and an effective agent in furthering the movement for the irrigation and settlement of arid lands, the preservation of the forests and streams, and the development of co-ordinate and associated movements with similar objects."

"At the present time, when great irrigation projects built by the federal government and others built by private enterprise are coming into use, the whole west is directly concerned in the successful settlement and profitable development of the lands reclaimed."

"I can not too strongly emphasize the interest which the west has in the success of the irrigation projects. The public is especially interested in the success of the government projects and should be seriously concerned about them. It is safe to assume that the private projects will be freely advertised and that they will be settled. It is not so sure about the others; the theory of the national reclamation act is that the people want the lands and there is no provision for seeking settlers, in fact it would be unwise to suggest the use of public money for this purpose. The service is doing all that can be done in harmony with the spirit and letter of the law. Private associations are doing excellent work on a number of projects where a large share of the lands are in private ownership; railway companies are including in their advertising campaigns such matter relative to the projects along their lines; there is, however, a lack of thoroughly coordinated effort which can be achieved only through a centralized agency, and great credit is due to the men who are all the best interests of the irrigation movement demand."

HOTEL MEN CONVEENE IN ZION

DELEGATES REPRESENTING TEN STATES WERE PRESENT

Permanent Organization Perfected—A. Fred Wey of Salt Lake Elected Vice-President.

Samuel Dutton of Denver was yesterday elected president of the Western Hotel Men's association at Salt Lake.

San Francisco has been selected as the home of the association and the next convention will be held December 7 to 10, in that city. Over fifty delegates were present, representing 10 states. Permanent organization was effected. A. Fred Wey of Salt Lake City was elected first vice-president; Harry Fryman, Los Angeles, second vice-president; and Edward T. Maples, publisher of the Western Hotel Reporter, San Francisco, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee includes M. Wright, Denver, and Lyman J. Hay of St. Louis.

Colorado sent a big delegation in a special car to take care of her interests, but when San Francisco's desire to entertain the hotel men of the middle west was evinced, generously withdrew and her delegates offered their cordial support to San Francisco. In the evening the delegates were entertained by local hotel men at a theater party.

NOTED DANGERS TO APPEAR IN OGDEN

A unique entertainment will be presented Wednesday evening in the Second Ward Amusement Hall, when the famous Skansen Dancers, from Ethnographical Gardens of Stockholm, Sweden, will give their entertainment of old-time dances in costume, expressive of the folk lore of Northern Europe.

The dancers, ten in number, have appeared before nearly every monarch in Europe, and their appearance in Ogden will be a decided novelty in the entertainment line in this city and promises to be novel and educational. Admission 25c.

MEETING OF OGDEN WOOL GROWERS

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR ATTENDING CONVENTION

Committee Appointed to Appeal to Legislature for Replenishing Bounty Fund.

An interesting meeting of the Ogden Woolgrowers association was held in the First National bank building of the city yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the meeting being attended by the members of the association and the Weber club. Definite arrangements for the trip to Poetello for the purpose of attending the national convention of the Woolgrowers of the United States were perfected. The special train scheduled for the convention will leave Ogden tomorrow afternoon at 2:25. According to reports made at the meeting yesterday there will be a large delegation from Ogden and Weber county to the convention.

It was announced at the gathering that those who have not already made arrangements for transportation may do so by applying to either secretary Reynolds of the Weber club or Herman Kuchler of the Woolgrowers' association. The rate made by the railroad company furnishing the transportation will be very reasonable and it is expressed by those most interested in the matter that those who have the better interests of Ogden at heart can well afford to make the trip and boost for the city.

The same question received due consideration at the meeting. John Spiers who has been especially delegated by the Ogden organization to exterminate the animals reports that last week 187 coyotes were killed. Kuchler in respect to the matter has been inaugurated by the local sheepmen, the results being very flattering. The work of extermination by the Ogden sheepmen is confined to the northern part of Utah and southern Idaho, the lambing grounds where the sheep destroying coyotes congregate. The mode of extermination of the coyote is by means of trapping and poisoning. The herder, of course, uses his gun but the most effective way of slaughter is found in trapping and poisoning.

The state law provides for a bounty on dead coyotes but it appears that the bounty fund in the state treasury is depleted to a point where the bounties cannot be paid. To secure an appropriation to replenish the state legislature to replenish the bounty fund, a committee, consisting of A. G. Fell, Chas. Zelmer and Herman Kuchler, has been appointed. This committee will appear before the legislative body and explain the necessity of paying a bounty on the scalps of coyotes so as to protect the sheep interests. It is confidently expected by the Ogden sheep men that the legislature will respond with a liberal bounty appropriation. The Ogden organization of sheep raisers is in a most flourishing condition, now having the largest membership in its history, and many new applications for membership being received every day.

CONCESSIONS ON BOTH SIDES

TWELVE THOUSAND MEN RESUME WORK ON D. & R. G.

Settlement Considered a Happy Culmination of a Long-Drawn Out Strike.

Not only will men of railroad circles, but the people in general be pleased to learn that the strike of the shommen of the Denver & Rio Grande system, which has been in effect since last March, was declared off yesterday, after a two-days' conference between railroad officials and representatives and the organizations involved, including machinists, blacksmiths, boiler-makers and their helpers. As a result about 12,000 men will resume work Thursday morning. The settlement was a compromise, both sides making concessions. The men gained the principal point for which they struck contracts with the railroad, which was the right to work in the shops which were in effect before the strike.

In speaking of the conclusion of the long drawn-out strike on the part of the machinists and boiler-makers of the R. G. W. system, the Ogden agent of the road, A. J. Cronin, stated last night: "It is a most happy culmination and means much for the better interests of the road and the public in general. It will be the means of placing the rolling stock of the road in better condition and will furnish better facilities for the traveling public and for the upbuilding of the immense freight traffic that we have at hand. It will not materially affect Ogden insofar as the payroll is concerned, but will be of invaluable benefit to the city from other points of view."

"The round house of the road in Ogden employs eight boiler-makers and the same number of machinists, the great machine shops of the western division being situated at Grand Junction, Colorado, Helper and Salt Lake, Utah. All light repairs that are needed at this end of the road are done in the Ogden yards, but the heavier repairing is done either in Helper or in Salt Lake. I am pleased to know that the strike has been settled; we can now proceed to greatly improve the rolling stock of the road. Ten new engines have already been placed in commission and it is very likely that others will be brought into requisition."

"TRUE MANHOOD" THE THEME LAST EVENING

At the Third ward meeting house last evening Dr. John T. Miller delivered an interesting and instructive address to a large assemblage of fathers on the subject, "True Manhood."

Dr. Miller said in part:

The twentieth century school teaches boys and girls the laws of physical development and the care of the body, but does not provide for the education of the student in the most vital problems related to the happiness of the home and the uplift of the human family. The power of procreation properly directed lifts mankind to the highest plane of life, when perverted it drops him to the lowest depths of degradation. When society reaches the stage of development where every youth is placed into a pure moral environment and is properly educated in respect to the entire being, the abnormal tendencies and expression of life will be overcome.

Every youth is blessed or cursed by heredity and environments. It is the duty of the home, the school, and the society to protect the youth from the dangerous precursors of life by creating the right conditions for development and building the human culture fence of proper instructions above every precipice rather than to wait until they have fallen over and then furnish an ambulance in the way of reform school, prison, or hospital to take care of the wounded bodies and souls.

Dr. Karl J. Maesien, who was a pioneer educator of the west in sex-education and other phases of moral reform, said:

"There is a certain degree of prudency prevailing among parents and teachers in respect to the education of their children or pupils are expected to enter into sooner of later. No one expects to occupy a position in business life without having informed himself in regard to its requirements, and sought advice from those interested in his welfare, or otherwise posted himself on the subject. But young people of both sexes are permitted to enter in to the most sacred relationship of life without one word of counsel."

In speaking of the abnormal life resulting among children because of the lack of proper education in sex-education, the speaker said: "In his book 'School and President' there is not an experienced teacher in the land who has not noticed with aching heart the symptoms of secret vice on the countenances of some of his pupils. Attempts to confer with the parents in such cases, for the purpose of securing their cooperation in the rescue of their child from the inevitable consequences of such habits, are usually met by a stolid indifference, and offended incredulity, or even by personal insults."

This condition is permitted to go on generation after generation without an intelligent effort to remedy it. The worst disease that afflicts many young people today is mental unchastity and the only remedy is in proper education and environments. Parents' classes and juvenile courts are doing much to improve conditions among the youth, but there must be an intelligent cooperation of all members of the community before juvenile vice and crime can be stamped out, and true manhood and womanhood become the inheritance of every youth. As long as every thought of many members of society is devoted to accumulating money and no time is devoted by them to the intellectual, moral and spiritual needs of the soul, the youth of their care, many lives will be blighted and few will reach the highest development that they are capable of. In our own fair state of Utah medical charlatans are spending at least $50,000 a year for advertising to catch the victims of secret vices and of the "social evil," and they rob these unfortunate of at least $100,000 a year. This system of robbery is carried on throughout the nation without any danger of being checked immediately by the government or by society. In order to bring up the youth in purity of thought and life, parents must be companionable with their children and place the right suggestions in their minds before the wrong one comes to them from some other source. The Great Teacher said: "Rob not evil, but overcome evil with good." Let the person who robs the youth of pure thoughts be considered more dangerous to society than the one who steals money.
